People with IDD, as with the general population, have many support needs, but often do not have the resources they need. They also face many barriers, including providers lack of training in how to help them navigate a variety of settings, such as healthcare and community settings. This session will provide those supporting and working with people with IDD and their families with the knowledge, skills and best practices to create treatment and support plans. The goal is to create plans that are responsive and tailored to the unique needs of both the individual and their family, while building strong partnerships with families and supporting providers for successful and sustainable outcomes.

Instructional level: Intermediate.

Who should attend? Professionals and anyone interested in the topic. 3.0 Continuing Education Credits (Category 1) will be granted to licensed social workers and psychologists for attending the session in full and completing all requirements. A Certificate of Attendance will be made available for all other disciplines.
