

Interdisciplinary Pre-Service Training and Internships at the Maryland Center for Developmental Disabilities at Kennedy Krieger Institute

Preparing Future Leaders

The Maryland Center for Developmental Disabilities (MCDD) is one of a national network of University Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (UCEDDs) funded by the Administration on Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities. The MCDD pre-service program prepares students and trainees for leadership roles advancing opportunities for people with disabilities. Undergraduate and graduate students from a range of disciplines—including law, policy, public health, education, social work, psychology, neuropsychology, behavioral psychology, and occupational, physical and speech-language therapies—train at the MCDD. Students and trainees gain practical skills and knowledge about the needs, strengths and perspectives of people with disabilities across the lifespan. The pre-service program integrates with our core projects to provide a variety of mentored experiential and didactic activities.

Discipline-Specific Internships

Research and Policy

The MCDD works with universities and clinical departments to offer significant research and policy experiences as part of an overall pre-service preparation experience. The cornerstone of this effort is the work done through the Wendy Klag Center for Autism and Developmental Disabilities at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health, including two funded internships in which interns work directly with the MCDD on research, evaluation and policy experiences.

Disability Perspective Experience

Through training from the point of view of families and self-advocates, students have the unique opportunity to discover and develop sensitivities to the complexities and challenges facing people with disabilities on a daily basis.

Discipline-Specific Placements

Professionals and students are invited to train with the MCDD in specific disciplines such as social work, law, special education, psychology, and community, mental and public health.

MCDD Teaching

MCDD staff members have faculty appointments at local universities and actively teach courses in behavioral and mental health, community and organizational practices, disability right advocacy, psychology, public health, social work, special education law, and qualitative research.

Key Partners

The MCDD partners with many dedicated individuals and organizations that work together to advance training opportunities for students and professionals. Students and trainees come from Maryland and around the nation.

Partners include:

- Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health
- Towson University
- University of Baltimore School of Law
- University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law
- University of Maryland School of Social Work

Kennedy Krieger Institute recognizes and respects the rights of employees, trainees, and patients and students, and their families. At Kennedy Krieger, we ground our care, services, training and research in treating others with respect and civility. We respect the cultural identity of every person. Kennedy Krieger does not discriminate against people based on, but not limited to, perceived or actual race, color, culture, ethnicity, national origin, age, language spoken, accent, marital status, veteran or military status, immigration status, socioeconomic status (i.e., access to resources), physical or mental disability, religion, pregnancy status, sex, sexual orientation, or gender identity or expression. We strive for equitable care for all individuals for whom we provide services, training, education and research participation. We encourage employees, trainees, and patients and students, and their families, to become active partners in the services provided by asking questions, seeking resources and advocating for their needs. Our culture of care is extended to our patients, the patients' family members and other people served. Here, "family" refers to parents, other family members, guardians, surrogate decision-makers and healthcare agents. ©2025 Kennedy Krieger Institute 4/2025
