

Calling All Faith Communities!

Disability and Faith Community Survey

Community makes us stronger. The social environment of a faith community can promote social relationships, independence and meaningful community participation for people with intellectual, developmental and other disabilities.

People with disabilities have many strengths and can play valued social roles in their faith communities if provided with opportunities that allow for their full inclusion and participation, where "all" means "all."

The Maryland Center for Developmental Disabilities (MCDD) at Kennedy Krieger Institute is leading a faith-based community project, in collaboration with the Maryland Department of Health's Office of Faith Based and Community Partnerships and the Faith Community Commission of the Governor's Commission on Suicide Prevention. The goal of the project is to promote inclusive practice and embed the Disability Ministry Ambassador Program in faith communities in Maryland to improve health outcomes for people with disabilities and their families.
