Registered participants will receive an e-mail with instructions on how to join the session.

Objectives: Participants will be able to:

1. Describe the life course perspective of disability, and research on aging with a disability.
2. Discuss the role of societal, environmental, and personal factors on aging for people with disabilities.
3. Identify strategies to maximize healthy aging for people with disabilities.

Historically, there has been a disconnect between aging and disability research. Disability research often lacks a life course perspective, and aging research most often examines disability as a health outcome. This workshop aims to draw connections between these two areas by describing research, data, and strategies focused on aging well with a disability.
